NEW FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR PROGRAMS

Three new pilot programs have been added to the traditional Fulbright Scholar Program.

- The New Century Scholars Program will bring together an international group of 30 top academics and professionals under the Fulbright banner to examine a major transnational theme and work collaboratively on an issue of global significance. The first grantees, selected in September 2001, will collaborate on the topic “Challenges of Health in a Borderless World.” “The topic for 2002–2003 will be “Addressing Sectarian, Ethnic and Cultural Conflict within and across National Borders.” Each year, the program will culminate with a plenary conference, and conference results and recommendations will be published and shared with appropriate national and international organizations. For information, contact Dr. Micaela S. Iovine (miovine@cies.iie.org).
- The Fulbright Senior Specialists Program provides short-term opportunities (two to six weeks) for leading U.S. faculty and professionals in select disciplines. Countries request Senior Specialists through their local Fulbright Commission or U.S. diplomatic post. The Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES) develops rosters of scholars who are willing to serve. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis. For information, visit the Web site at www.cies.org/cies/specialists/ or contact Kristen Johnson (kjohnson@cies.iie.org).
- The Alumni Initiatives Awards Program, designed to help former Fulbrighters develop sustainable linkages between their U.S. and host institutions overseas, awarded its second round of 19 grants in August 2001. The awards supported projects that built on the Fulbright scholars’ experience abroad to develop mutually beneficial institutional partnerships and varied in value from $7,940 to $20,000. For program requirements, eligibility and application deadline, contact Dr. Micaela S. Iovine (miovine@cies.iie.org).

Detailed information on all three programs is available on the CIES Web site at www.cies.org.

INTRODUCTION

Each year over 800 U.S. faculty and professionals are awarded Fulbright grants to lecture or conduct research abroad. Grants range in duration from the full academic year to a semester or less.

About 80 percent of the awards are for university lecturing, usually in a field of importance to the host institution. Many lecturing awards allow opportunities for research, and research scholars may undertake occasional lecturing. Benefits for awards vary from country to country but generally include round-trip travel, basic health insurance and maintenance allowances.

Most awards require the doctorate or other terminal degree or appropriate professional experience. While English is acceptable for many assignments, fluency in a language is sometimes required. All applicants for Fulbright opportunities abroad must be U.S. citizens.

The Directory

To acquaint academic and professional communities at home and abroad with U.S. Fulbright scholars and their fields of specialization, the Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES), which cooperates with the United States Department of State in administering the Fulbright Scholar Program, annually publishes this directory of U.S. Fulbright scholars.

The directory provides a comprehensive listing of grantees by academic discipline, which includes their home institutions, affiliations abroad, lecturing or research project titles and dates of stay in the host country. Scholars are also listed in separate indexes arranged alphabetically, by home state and by host geographic area. U.S. scholars participating in short-term seminars—the Fulbright German Studies Seminar, U.S.-Germany International Education Administrators Program, U.S.-Japan International Education Administrators Program and U.S.-Korea International Education Administrators Program—and the Alumni Initiatives Awards Program are also listed. Grantees in the Fulbright Senior Specialists Program, which has a rolling deadline, are listed on the CIES Web site.

Grants for some 2001–2002 scholars will not be confirmed until after this directory is published. The names of these scholars will appear in the next edition—just as scholars who received grants but were not listed in the 2000–2001 edition appear in this directory beginning on page 105. For a complete listing of 2001–2002 U.S. scholars, visit us online at www.cies.org.

Applying for a Fulbright Award

U.S. scholars and other professionals interested in university lecturing and advanced research abroad are encouraged to visit CIES online at www.cies.org for eligibility requirements, award descriptions and application materials.

U.S. Scholar Stories

The value and impact of the Fulbright Scholar Program are perhaps best reflected in the experience Fulbrighters have while they are abroad. As the following scholar stories indicate, Fulbrighters—and their home institutions—benefit significantly from the lecturing and research carried out while on their grants. Many scholars also report that their Fulbright adventure helped them to achieve a new awareness and understanding of the world and their own country.

To read more scholar stories, visit “The Fulbright Experience” section on our Web site at www.cies.org.

Africa

Steve Pasternack, a professor of journalism at New Mexico State University, helped establish a new journalism program at the National University of Rwanda in the city of Butare, Rwanda. He arrived there as a Fulbright Lecturer to find 30 journalism students eager to get started. From July to December 2000, he helped to set up the School of Communication by creating the curriculum, obtaining equipment for a fully networked computer lab and starting a collection of books for the students. Pasternack also taught two courses, one on interviewing techniques and another on media and ethics. In May and June 2001, as one of the first grantees for the new Fulbright Senior Specialists Program, Pasternack returned to Rwanda for six weeks to teach, conduct assessments and work with journalists.

East Asia and the Pacific

University of Michigan Law School professor Nicholas Rine traveled to Cambodia on a Fulbright grant to do curriculum development work in law. Unlike American law schools, Cambodian institutions do not offer any education directed towards issues of professional responsibility or professional practice-oriented skills. Rine, therefore, concentrated his efforts in these two areas. He also consulted with the Cambodian Bar Association in its development of the teaching and testing program required to permit licensing of law graduates to practice and did an intensive training in mediation for a non-governmental organization (NGO) called Cambodia Women’s Crisis Center. In addition, he acted as a supervisor/mentor for about a dozen law students (some from the University of Michigan) who were working for several different NGOs over the summer.

Europe

Independent scholar Cecelia Porter, music critic for The Washington Post, went to Vienna, Austria, on a Fulbright grant to conduct research for her second book, Women, Music and Society. She was able to find first-rate sources on Maria Bach, a 20th-century Viennese composer whose life spanned both World Wars, the Anschluss and the birth of the modern feminist movement. Porter’s two months of study (May and June 2000) in Vienna also gave her unparalleled access to Bach’s original manuscripts and critical reviews, and a chance to exchange information with Austrian musicologists and performers.

The New Independent States

Describing herself as “restless to undertake a challenging overseas assignment in a country in transition,” Kyra Janssen, an adjunct faculty at Santa Rosa Junior College in Santa Rosa, California, applied for and won a Fulbright award to teach English as a Second Language (ESL) at Kharkiv State Polytechnic University (KSPU) in Ukraine. Janssen taught in the newly created Department of Foreign Languages for Specific Purposes. This department, created in 1999, provides instruction for students in a variety of scientific and technical fields in languages other than Ukrainian or Russian. Janssen conducted classes for students whose major fields were applied mathematics, information systems and economics.

The Middle East and North Africa

Valerie Hoffman, an Arabic scholar and associate professor at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, had previously spent time in Zanzibar where she had found a wealth of Arabic manuscripts. But to understand them better she realized that she needed to know more about the Ibadi Muslim culture of Oman and Yemen that had produced the writings. She was awarded a Fulbright research grant in September 2000, and traveled to Oman and Yemen where she poured over Ibadi manuscripts and met with scholars, government ministers, and even Oman's senior religious leader, the Grand Mufti. Thanks to what she learned on her Fulbright, she has already written the first chapter of her new book, Thirsting for the Waters of Nahrawan: The Mystic Warrior-Scholars of the Modern Ibadi Renaissance. She is also working on a translation of an Ibadi theology primer, and eager to get started on the other writing projects that developed from her Fulbright year.

South Asia

As the world's leading specialist on diamonds, Stephen Haggerty, professor of geophysics at the University of Massachusetts–Amherst, went to Hyderabad, in south central India, to conduct research on diamond-bearing rocks, a project with important implications for India's economy. Because the primary sources of diamonds in India have never been found, Haggerty wondered if this was a case of an extraordinary set of geological circumstances. His Fulbright grant was a crash course in the geology of India, as he studied unpublished data and talked to researchers there. Now back in Massachusetts, along with several hundred pounds of Indian rocks, he recently received National Science Foundation funding to analyze those rocks and place them in a global context.

Western Hemisphere

Archaeologist Arthur Demarest, a professor at Vanderbilt University, made news headlines around the world in 2000 when a team that he was leading uncovered what may be the most significant and well-preserved Mayan palace discovered in the last century. The spectacular 170-room, 270,000-square-foot limestone palace in Cancun, Guatemala, is buried virtually intact. When excavated it will greatly advance archaeologists' understanding of Mayan cultural development. Demarest has also made significant efforts to help professionalize archaeology in Guatemala by working to create a professional class of archaeologists who can help to staff Guatemala's museums, archaeological parks and powerful government cultural institutions. He also spent part of his Fulbright sojourn teaching archaeology and anthropology courses to both majors and nonmajors at the Universidad del Valle.

ADMINISTRATION AND FUNDING OF THE FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR PROGRAM

The flagship international educational exchange program sponsored by the U.S. Government, widely known as the Fulbright Program, is designed to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries. With this goal as a starting point, the Fulbright Program has provided more than 250,000 participants chosen for their leadership potential—with the opportunity to observe each others' political, economic and cultural institutions, exchange ideas and embark on joint ventures of importance to the general welfare of the world's inhabitants.

The Fulbright Program was established in 1946 under legislation introduced by former Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas. The Fulbright Program is administered by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the United States Department of State.

Since the establishment of the Program, 42,200 Fulbright Visiting Scholars have conducted research or taught in U.S. universities, and more than 40,100 Fulbright U.S. Scholars have engaged in similar activities abroad. The Fulbright Program awards approximately 800 grants to U.S. Scholars each year. Currently, the Program operates in 140 countries worldwide.

The primary source of funding for the Fulbright Program is an annual appropriation made by the United States Congress to the Department of State. Participating governments and host institutions in foreign countries and in the United States also contribute financially through cost-sharing and indirect support, such as salary supplements, tuition waivers and university housing. The Congressional appropriation for the Fulbright Program in fiscal year 2001 was $118.7 million. Foreign governments, through their binational commissions or foundations, contributed an additional $28 million directly to the Fulbright Program.

The J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board (FSB), composed of 12 educational and public leaders appointed by the President of the United States, formulates policy for the administration of the program, establishes criteria for the selection of candidates and approves candidates nominated for awards.

The United States Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs develops policies to assure fulfillment of the purposes of the Program and administers it with the assistance of binational education commissions and foundations in some 51 countries that have executive agreements with the United States for continuing exchange programs, United States Embassies in 89 other countries and a number of cooperating agencies in the United States.

Binational commissions and foundations draw up the annual program plan for exchanges, in consultation with participating universities and organizations in the host country. They also screen, interview and recommend to the FSB qualified candidates for student and faculty grants under their exchange programs. In a country without a commission or foundation, the Public Affairs Section of the U.S. Embassy develops the program and supervises it locally.

The Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES) under a cooperative agreement with the Department of State, administers the Fulbright Scholar Program for faculty and professionals. CIES is a division of the Institute of International Education (IIE) and has close working relationships with the major disciplinary bodies in the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences. During the terms of their grants in the United States, Fulbright lecturers and researchers are assisted by CIES.
