Homework Assignment – Links

Thank you so much for your feedback! I’ve compiled your navigation homework below, except for Kate’s which has comments and is easier to read as a Word doc. I thought a bunch of attachments would make things confusing, but perhaps I was wrong. Anyway, scroll away, and we’ll talk about these tomorrow morning. No pressure to have them memorized!

Thanks again for your time and participation.

Arthur:
The left-hand menu is too long and not suitable for mobile devices (submenus cannot be automatically converted to a dropdown box for those). So I suggest using this nice logical one, geared to users' needs, from Columbia as a model, with links to other pages for more info:

Joshua:
I like our categories in many ways. I think Libraries and Collections should stay, for instance. However, I think they can be slimmed down and simplified. Many of thinks in the drop down menus should be consolidated. Are we required to have Academic Integrity on the main page? I like having it that prominently displayed. So....in lieu of further mulling.
1. Libraries and Collections
2. Research Help
3. Services and Privileges (no but something)
4. Hours and Contacts
5. Academic Integrity

In terms of navigation, I prefer left-hand as opposed to Hendrix’s. However, the openness and dynamic display of their page is very nice.

Mary:
I agree with what Arthur said at the previous meeting and also think that the choices we have on the main page are still working. I think we should keep:

- Find Information
- Research Help
I think I understood that we were losing the black strip at the top, so I think Ask a Librarian would be my top choice to add to the left from there if that is the case.
