

BCN 89. Natural Gas Bill 1954 - 1956 [sic]

BCN 89. General description.

Files 1 through 7 contain materials and correspondence on the Natural Gas Act, a bill to exempt independent natural gas producers from direct federal price regulation. While most of the correspondence expresses opposition to JWF's support of the gas bill, File 6 contains favorable correspondence representing different groups interested in the passage of the bill. JWF responses, while largely routine, are somewhat extensive at times as he attempts to explain the bill. Subjects found frequently throughout the files include: lobby influence, Francis Higbee Case, campaign contributions, mass media, Oren Harris, and the oil industry.

Files 8-26 include letters from beneficiaries of student exchange programs as well as applicants for same. Although there are a few constituent letters, most are out-of-state. Found generally throughout the files are requests for various types of financial assistance as well as requests for particular types of information concerning the exchange program and letters of appreciation from recipients of scholarships. JWF responses include forwarding inquiries and requests to proper channels and relaying information concerning the application for awards under the exchange program. JWF correspondence includes also efforts to marshal support for the program with letters to various influential persons. Subjects include a variety of nations involved (especially India and Greece), education, the Bricker Amendment, and the Natural Gas Act. Frequent correspondents include: Francis James Colligan, Russell Lowell Riley, and Thruston Ballard Morton. These correspondents handled the mail forwarded by JWF to their department for more thorough replies concerning educational exchange; and coordinated responses to proper channels.

BCN 93-97 Cross Reference.

BCN 93-97 consists of files, in general alphabetical order, containing carbon copies of letters originating in JWF's offices. Letters are grouped by alphabetical sub-headings and arranged chronologically within the alphabetical groups. Specific names and subjects are not indexed separately, as identical copies of all correspondence may be found in subject-oriented files. Letters to a specific correspondent, however, may be located with relative facility by a cursory search of these cross reference files.
