Online Series in the Library Catalog

Follow these procedures when some or all volumes of a series are available online.

1. Some volumes online (see step 3 below for titles that later switch to online only)

   When some volumes are issued in print and others are available online, establish and trace the series as if all volumes were print. Apply this treatment:

   - when all online volumes are also issued in print (as is commonly the case with PDF reproductions). LCRI 25.5B explicitly states: "When a serial/series/multipart item is republished or reproduced (as a text, as a microform, as large print, as a braille edition, as a digitized reproduction, etc.), do not use a uniform title to distinguish one of these replications from the original. If the original itself has a uniform title, use the same uniform title for the republication."

   - even when some of the volumes are issued online only.

   - whether or not we own any of the print volumes.

The following is an example of a series that is available in both formats. You may wish to add a 667 note about usage to the authority record.
2. All volumes online

When all volumes of the series are issued online only, then treat the series as an online one. The following is an example of one such series.

`See especially AACR2 12.1B8, 21.2, 21.3, and LCRI 21.3B`

3. Print or print/online becomes online only

Any time the cataloging rules call for a title change, whether a monographic series or serial is involved, treat it as a series title change. Link the headings by including a 530 field in the authority record for each title and supplying the appropriate |w code (“a” for earlier heading and “b” for later heading). The following is an example.
